15 BOYS, MEN HELD IN POLICE CRIME PROBE

MAJORITY ARE YOUTHS

Solution to Series of Burglaries Sought; Merchandise Believed Stolen Seized.

Police last night launched a sweeping crime investigation which was only partially under way this morning with 15 young men and youths under arrest for questioning and a quantity of merchandise believed stolen in recent burglaries recovered.

Several weeks of probing and piecing together of stray bits of information came to a climax last night when the series of arrests and searches got under way.

Police at noon today said they were searching for several more youths and men believed linked in what appears to be an underworld organization which has been responsible for a number of recent crimes in the city Two youths arrested last night also were being sought following a jail break early this morning.

Men and youths from the ages of 13 to 33 are under arrest, booked on investigation. As charges have not been preferred against more than one or two of the men, names of the prisoners are being withheld. A majority of those held are of ages between 13 and 15 years.

The jailbreak from a room frequently used to house women prisoners at city hall was discovered this morning when officials prepared to question the two youths housed in the room. All the other prisoners were either in the jail proper or at the detention home

A heavy wire mesh guarding a window in the rest rooms of the women's quarters was torn away by the youths with the assistance of some pieces of wood and metal in the room. An intensive effort to recapture these two is being made, according to Chief William A. Marks.

BANK OFFICIALS TO APPEAR BEFORE JURY

Heads of Defunct Galion Institution Will Tell Story of Alleged Shortage.

By International News Service

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 20—Directors and other officials of the defunct Citizens' National bank at Galion, O., who were implicated in the institution's failure by James E. Casey, convicted former president, were to tell their versions of the $223,049.30 alleged shortage in funds for the first time today as the federal grand jury investigation into affairs at the bank neared a close.

Although more than a dozen witnesses today remained to be called before the jury during its probe "to the bottom" of the bank's shortage, William J. McDermott, assistant U. S. district attorney, indicated that the investigation may be completed by tomorrow.

Miss Mary Volk, cashier of the closed bank, Lloyd Casey, assistant cashier and brother of James E. Casey, and directors and several other persons who are connected with the institution directly or indirectly, were among the remaining witnesses expected to be called before the jury today.

USE OF U. S. WHEAT FOR RELIEF OKAYED

Senate Committee Approves Bill To Authorize Transfer of 20 Million Bushels.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—The senate agriculture committee today approved a bill to authorize the federal farm board to devote 20,000,000 bushels of wheat purchased by its subsidiaries for relief purposes.

The bill, a modification of a measure introduced by Senator Capper, Republican of Kansas, would authorize President Hoover to designate the agency which would distribute the wheat.

The farm board's revolving fund would be credited with the amount paid for the wheat.

Senator Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, a member of the committee, described the bill as a direct appropriation of $15,000,000 for relief purposes.

The original Capper bill provided for using 40,000,000 bushels of the farm board's wheat, but the committee amended it at the suggestion of government agencies.

SENATE DRYS SCORE VICTORY

Committee Turns Down Bill To Repeal Temperance Day in Schools.

FIRST UPPER HOUSE TEST

Indicates Anti-Prohibition Measures May Have Little Chance in State Senate.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20—Temperance committee of the Ohio senate voted today for an indefinite postponement of the bill to repeal the law for an annual observance of Temperance day in schools, providing the first test of anti-prohibition legislation in the upper house.

The action to postpone virtually killed the bill for it cannot be taken out of committee except by a majority vote of the senate.

Five of the nine committee members voted for postponement of consideration and three voted against. The remaining member, who is regarded as a wet, was not present.

The bill was one of several introduced by Senator Joseph Ackerman of Cleveland and destined to wipe every trace of state prohibition from the Ohio law books. The others provide for repeal of the state prohibition law and for the dismantling of the enforcement system.

If the committee alignment remains the same with respect to these measures the anti-prohibitionists appear to have little hope in the senate.

Senator C. J. Anderson of Shelby made the motion to postpone and he was supported by Senators J. G. Lowery of New Concord, D. J. Gunsett of Van Wert, William Dunapaoem of Bowling Green, and John A. Lloyd of Portsmouth.

The negative vote was cast by Senators Ackerman, David Lorbach, of Cincinnati and James A. Reynolds of Cleveland. Senator L. H. Norton of Cleveland, regarded as a member of the "wet" ring of the committee was not present.

CUTS $668,624 OFF APPROPRIATION BILL

Rohe's State Senate Committee Makes Saving in Emergency Measure.

A temporary saving of $668,624 for the state of Ohio will be effected if the senate and house today and Wednesday approve the senate emergency appropriation bill which has been drawn up by the senate finance committee of which State Senator Robert L. Rohe of Tiffin, who represents Marion and six other counties in the combined thirteenth and thirty-first districts, is chairman.

By preventing salary increases and creation of new jobs at state institutions until investigation can be made, and by blocking expenditure for state equipment not immediately needed, the committee has reduced the appropriation bill from $24,961,044 to $24,315,139, according to an International News Service dispatch from Columbus.

Pay envelopes for 3,000 state employes are being held up pending disposition of the appropriation bill, which was ordered rewritten by Governor White last week. White insisted that the bill be trimmed and not follow former Governor Cooper's "lump sum" idea, which he vigorously attacked during the campaign last fall.

The $668,624 saving will be only temporary, it is pointed out, since most of the sum later will be transferred to the budget for the biennium, study of which will be made later during the session of the assembly.

HOOVER AND HIS DRY LAW "JURY"

Comstock, President Hoover, Chairman George W. Wickersham and William S. Kenyon. Standing: Kenneth R. MacIntosh, Monte M. Lemann, Paul J. McCormick, Frank J. Loesch, William J. Grubb, Newton D. PRESIDENT ACCEPTS DEDICATION OFFER

Hoover Gives "Some Time After May" as Date of Ceremonies at Harding Memorial, According to Associated Press Bulletin.

President Herbert Hoover today formally accepted an invitation to dedicate the Harding Memorial here, according to an Associated Press bulletin received from Washington this afternoon.

No date was given in the president's acceptance of the invitation, although it was indicated that it would be "some time after May."

The invitation, which recently was drawn up by trustees of the Harding Memorial association at a meeting here, suggested that the president come some time between May 15 and Nov. 15.

Hoke Donithen, secretary of the association, today said the executive committee would meet soon to make definite arrangements for the dedicatory exercises. The newspaper dispatches from Washington brought Donithen the first information he had received that the chief executive had definitely accepted the association's invitation.

The invitation was formally extended by Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, former senator of New Jersey, who is president of the association. He said Calvin Coolidge, former president, also would be invited to attend the ceremonies, according to the Associated Press.

Frelinghuysen, along with Donithen, was commissioned to give the invitation to the president but Donithen left the mission entirely to Frelinghuysen because of the latter's residence in the east.

President Hoover recently indicated he would participate in the dedication ceremonies if invited. Trustees of the association then met at the Harding Hotel and formally drafted a resolution inviting the chief executive.

UNEMPLOYMENT BILL TO BE GIVEN SENATE

First Proposal of Kind in Ohio; Similar to Compensation Act.

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20—The first unemployment insurance bill ever submitted to an Ohio legislature was to be introduced in the senate today by Senator James A. Reynolds, Democrat, of Cleveland.

The bill, sponsored by the Consumers' League of Ohio, proposes to create an unemployment insurance fund, similar to the present workmen's compensation fund, to be administered by the state and to be maintained by premuims from employers and employes.

With a few exceptions, all employers of more than three persons would be required to pay premiums into the fund in proportion to their payrolls, not to exceed 3½ per cent and not less than ½ per cent. Employes protected under the proposed fund would be required to pay a premium of 1½ per cent of their wages.

Farmers, domestics and employes of railroads or of other employers subject to interstate commerce commission jurisdiction are excluded from the proposed law.

The unemployment payments would be fixed at 50 per cent of the employers' regular wages, but not to exceed $18.75 a week and for not more than 13 weeks in any year. Only persons who had worked and contributed their premiums for at least 26 weeks of the preceeding year would be eligible for the payments, and then only after a preliminary period of two weeks.

Three Explosives Set Off at Different Points Near Buenos Aires.

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 20—Three bombs exploding at strategic places on railway lines entering Buenos Aires before dawn this morning killed three persons and injured numbers of others.

The first exploded in the Plaza, once Western Railway terminal. Three coaches of an incoming electric train were wrecked and three persons killed and several injured.

The second explosion occurred in the southern railway station in the Plaza Constitucion, several persons being injured.

The third bomb exploded in a coach of a train of the Central Argentine railway, partly wrecking a suburban passenger train.

Stand Against Repeal Is Given OK of Hoover

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—President Hoover expressed accord with the opinion of the Wickersham report against repeal of the 18th amendment in a message he dispatched today with the report to congress.

"The commission by a large majority does not favor the repeal of the 18th amendment as a method of cure for the inherent abuses of the liquor traffic," Mr. Hoover stated. "I am in accord with this view.

At the same time the President said he saw serious objections to the proposed revised constitutional amendment suggested in the report, designed to lodge with congress the authority over prohibition

Praise for the general tenor of the document was expressed by Mr. Hoover. It said it was a temperate and judicial presentation, and should stimulate the "clarification of public mind and the advancement of public thought."

Seek Advancement

"I am in unity with the spirit of the report in seeking constructive steps to advance the national ideal of eradication of the social and economic and political evils of this traffic to preserve the gains which have been made and to eliminate the abuses which exist, at the same time facing with an open mind the difficulties which have arisen under this experiment

"I do, however, see serious objections to, and therefore must not be understood as recommending the commission's proposed revision of the 18th amendment which is suggested by them for possible consideration at some future time if the continued effort at enforcement should not prove successful. My own duty and that of all executive officials is clear—to enforce the law. With all the means at our disposal without equivocation or reservation."

ENFORCEMENT MUST IMPROVE TO ASSURE FUTURE PROHIBITION

Designated as Imperative If Dry Era Is To Survive; Members Recognize Benefits, but Condemn Conditions That Prevail.

SWEDISH SYSTEM VIEWED FAVORABLY

Commission Agrees That If Constitution Be Changed Absolute Banning of Liquor Be Dropped and New Solution Put Up to Congress.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—The majority of the law enforcement commissioners have found prohibition sufficiently wanting to warrant a change.

Unable to agree unanimously on a specific remedy, the Wickersham commission and its 11 members embodied their views in an even dozen conflicting reports. All were laid before congress today by President Hoover.

That of the commission as a whole was a compromise, making no recommendation for repeal or major revision.

In the individual conclusions, two commissioners asked outright repeal, four others favored modification, two were for a further trial with some form of referendum meanwhile, and the remaining three advocated continued trial with intensified enforcement.

Separately and collectively, the members condemned many of the conditions under the dry laws, while at the same time noting its benefits They declared better observance and enforcement imperative if prohibition is to survive."

With one exception, the commission agreed that if the constitution is to be revised, the best way would be to strike out the present absolute banning of liquor and to give congress the responsibility of finding a new solution

One Exception

The exception was Monte M. Lemann of Louisiana, who did not sign the main report. He and Newton D. Baker of Ohio, recommended repeal.

One commissioner, Henry W. Anderson of Virginia, advanced a proposal for government liquor control, somewhat after the method in effect in Sweden. Commissioners Kenyon, Loesch, MacIntosh, McCormick and Pound recommended consideration of the plan. The indorsements of Kenyon and McCormick were qualified by statements that they favored further trial of the present law.

Besides Anderson, those proposing modification of the Eighteenth amendment were Ada L. Comstock of Massachusetts, Frank J. Loesch of Illinois, and Roscoe Pound of Massachusetts.

William S. Kenyon of Iowa, and Paul J. McCormick of California, favored further trial with a canvass of public sentiment by referendum or through state conventions.

Those who advised going ahead with the present system under stricter enforcement were Chairman George W. Wickersham of New York, William I. Grubb of Alabama, and Kenneth MacIntosh from the state of Washington.

Opposed to Repeal

The commission as a whole rejected repeal of the Eighteenth amendment or restoration of the legalized saloon. It expressed opposition to federal or state governments as such going into the liquor business. It opposed modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer.

After declaring "there is yet no adequate observance or enforcement," the commission recommended increase of the [illegible] personnel and customs [illegible] personnel to prosecute [illegible]

If the dry [illegible] to be revised at all, the [illegible] opposed it should be [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] the

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday Jan. 21

THE planetary conditions in dominant rulership on this day may not be deemed as fortunate, excepting for those in the employment of others, who may enjoy some small recognition or favor from their superiors. Otherwise there may be encountered a state of turmoil and perturbation vexing the spirit and reacting on the physical condition. Finances are in a critical arc and there is a sign of duplicity fraud or subtle undoing.

Those whose birthday it is may not expect a very advantageous year unless their employment brings them some preferment of gratification. There is a general state of turmoil, confusion and dissension, with finances imperiled and the menace of fraud, trickery and secret attack. Be on guard against these. A child born on this day may have a rather diffident and retiring nature and should seek employment far from the prospect of clamor, strife and confusion.

BUCYRUS, Jan. 20—A Chamber of Commerce committee composed of R. L. Spurlock, F. L. Hopley, Fred Kloepfer and Harry Paxton has been appointed to make a survey of sentiment of local business men and manufacturers on the selection of the Gormley site as the site for the new $140,000 federal building here. This action was taken by the Chamber of Commerce when it became known that protests had been filed by three local banks urging a reconsideration of the selection. Banks which have expressed disfavor to the selection are the Second National Bucyrus City and Farmers and Citizens.

That the site selected will constitute a dangerous risk for bank messengers carrying valuable shipments, because of its location was given as the reason for the bank's protests.

LABOR FILES PROTEST ON CABINET NOMINEE

Senate Committee Hears Formal Objection to Selection of Edmondson.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20—In the opinion of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, placing Thomas A. Edmondson of Urbana, in charge of Ohio's labor department and the administration and enforcement of the state's labor laws, would be a "travesty."

This was labor's stand against Edmondson's selection by Governor White as director of industrial relations, as voiced in a formal protest filed last night with the senate labor committee to which Edmondson's appointment was referred after its transmission to the senate.

The protest declares that under the administrative code, the director of industrial relations is a member of the governor's cabinet and instead of labor being represented in cabinet meetings advising the governor on matters pertaining to labor, there will be "not a workman familiar and sympathetic" with the labor laws, "but an employer."

The protest also asserted that, heretofore, in all cabinet meetings, labor has had a representative in the person of the industrial relations director. If Edmondson is confirmed, that representation will be lacking in Governor White's cabinet, it declared.

Apparently taking the view that the matter of confirmation of the governor's cabinet members is a matter concerning chiefly the Democratic minority, the Republican majority acquiesced in the minority's wishes, and sent the Edmondson appointment to the labor committee.

Some Specialists In Excess Fat Make Thousands Thin

Since this new discovery

... doctors were not often consulted on obesity. People simply assumed excess fat meant too much food, too little exercise. They feared the doctor would prescribe starvation.

... that has changed. Science has discovered that a scanty gland secretion is the cause of excess fat. Doctors now not only know how to correct it. Thousands of them are telling thousands of others to normal figures.

The factor they use is employed in Marmola prescription tablets. A world-famous medical laboratory prepares them to fit the average case. Thus anyone can now deal with obesity in the right way at small cost. This way supplies the lacking factor which largely controls nutrition. It helps turn food into fuel. Energy when too much goes to fat. This help in all medicine is more widely accepted today.

Marmola has been used for 24 years —millions of boxes of it. Users have told others about it, and the use has spread. Now you can see its results in every circle. Excess fat has been fast disappearing. Slender figures are everywhere the vogue.

Now excess fat is folly. It takes so little to correct it. No abnormal exercise or diet. Combat the gland cause. Think what the results will mean in beauty, health and vim.

All druggists supply Marmola at $1. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the reasons for results. It means doing what doctors do, instead of something harmful or absurd. Go start today.

MARION OHIO

STANDINGS IN N. C. O. DUE FOR SHAKEUP

HARDING HAS CHANCE TO MOVE UP NOTCH

Presidents Will Be Underdog, but May Come Through; Ashland Faces Shelby.

WHEN the interested observers of the progress of the basketball race in the North Central Ohio league rouse themselves from their slumber Saturday of this week they may find themselves viewing a far different arrangement in the standings of the circuit than exists at present. Any number of happenings are liable to take place with the schedule of games for Friday night being what it is.

If everything moves according to the manner prescribed by most of the official prognosticators, Harding High school will find itself in undisputed possession of fifth place in the standings. If however, the Presidents hand the dope bucket a vigorous boot, the scarlet clad warriors may find themselves reposing in a deadlock for second place honors in the league.

Ashland at Shelby

The Friday night schedule calls for Ashland to set up their stalling defense in the Shelby gym and attempt to successfully defend an unblemished record. Bucyrus will make another of its weekly efforts to crash into the winning side of the ledger, this time with Mansfield's Tygers blocking the path to victory. Galion will engage a set of deadly rivals parading under the colors of Harding High school on the floor of the Marion Star auditorium.

According to past records and comparison of strength, Mansfield should emerge winner in a close game with Bucyrus, Ashland should defeat Shelby in another hotly contested encounter and Galion should hand Harding a neat trimming. Unfortunately, or maybe fortunately, contestants oft-times refuse to abide by predictions and because of this there may be several upsets recorded Friday night.

No Ball—No Baskets

The outstanding game of the evening should be the Ashland-Shelby clash. Ashland boasts a record of three straight games while Shelby has taken two and dropped one. The Ashlanders beat Galion last Friday by the quite simple method of keeping the ball in mid-court where the Orangemen could not get possession of it, it being quite obvious that you can't score baskets when you can't get hold of the ball. Ashland to date has been playing a delayed offense game which has been unusually effective against the zone defense used by opposing teams. If Shelby uses the man-for-man defense the Hilltoppers will be in for a bad way long before the game is over. If the Whippets try to beat Ashland with anything other than a man-for-man defense the Hilltoppers will be prohibitive favorites to retain an unbeaten record.

Not So Hot

Bucyrus and Mansfield will probably put up some kind of wierd battle in which the final outcome is doubtful. Mansfield will probably put the rougher outfit on the floor and this may be enough to turn the tide to the Tygers. Bucyrus started the season without a combination capable of scoring very many points and apparently still has one of the same type.

Despite the fact that Harding flashed sufficient form to easily decision Bucyrus, the Galion Orangemen will be favorites to hand the Presidents a defeat. This is another of the "sure things" that may prove full wet." Harding is working hard this week to devise some kind of an offensive to cope with that of Galion and may succeed in doing so. Should the Presidents come through with a win over Galion it will give them a 500 per cent average and put them in a triple tie with Shelby and Galion for second place. According to this, Ashland is certain to defeat Shelby. Which, I hasten to add, is about as certain this early in the week as it is to say that Harding will be the next N. C. O. champion in football. The only thing certain about the games this week is that they start at 8:15 p. m. eastern standard time.

Outsider Beats Layton in Pool Tournament

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 — Frank Scoville of Buffalo waited 30 years to make his debut in a world's championship billiard tournament and then he upset one of the strongest champions in the three-cushion field ever knew.

Scoville last night defeated Johnny Layton, champion of all three-cushion stars for three years straight, in the first match of the 1931 tournament by a score of 50 to 35 in 55 innings.

Scoville executed shots with great accuracy and left the champion but few easy shots. His high run for the match was six while Layton's best cluster totaled three.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

IT is unfortunate that two of the high schools in Marion county are without facilities for playing basketball. Inasmuch as the two institutions in question, Meeker and Agosta, have such a small enrollment it is out of the question for them to attempt to produce teams in outdoor sports such as football or track. With these two sports off the list only basketball and baseball remain and the schools are even hard put to support a diamond squad.

Even if they are capable of putting enough men in uniform for baseball it is obvious that this game cannot be played during a large part of the school year. There should be some competitive sport in which the students could take part during the indoor season. Basketball is the only one to fill the bill.

It is reported that citizens of Meeker are starting agitation looking to the procuring of a gym in which the high school may play. There are a lot of students in the school this year who are believed to be unusually proficient in the game and most of them will return next season. The townspeople are anxious to see the school playing basketball and are willing to do all possible to secure a gym.

It is certain that nothing will come of this sentiment in time for play this season but it will be a great boon for the rural community should it find a place in time for play next season.

New Champion Due in Y Church League

After a two year reign as champions of the Y-Church basketball league, the Central Christians five is apparently slated for a lower berth in the circuit this year. The favorites to take their place is at present the First Presbyterians with Waldo perhaps a long shot chance to come through and cop the bunting.

Of course it is not safe as yet to write any presentation speeches naming the Presbies as the winners of the championship. Several other teams in the circuit have shown a lot of power and may catch the Presbies unawares and hand them a defeat. One defeat would again leave the race wide open.

It will not be until Feb. 7 that fans will have an opportunity to see Waldo and Presbyterians get together to settle their argument. By the time that rolls around either may have been defeated. Waldo stands a good chance of losing to the apparently dethroned Christian five in the game set for this Saturday. If the out of town quintet does come through with a victory over the Christians the Presbyterians will have their hands full beating them out of a title. Waldo is anxious to win a championship and feels this year is as good as any to accomplish it. Incidentally, if you ask me . . . or even if you don't . . . I think they just about deserve it. They have worked long enough for it.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 -Northwestern's hopes ofa Big Ten basketball champion flamed anew today while those of Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa flickered and died.

Sahttering a 12-year old jinx the Wildcats forged to the front in the race last night at Ann Arbor by defeating Michigan, 26 to 21, after a hard fight. The victory gave the Wildcats a one-game edge over Chicago. The only other undefeated team in the conference.

It was Northwestern's third straight triumph, Chicago won its first two games.

Wisconsin, one of the perennial championship threats, also joined Michigan's class by a whipping from Minnesota, 28 to 26, last night at Minneapolis. The game was close all the way.

Columbus Team Loses as Y-Indus Returns to Form

After a two game relapse, the Shovel Y-Indus basketball club returned to its usual snappy form last night and handed the Central Evening High school of Columbus a 31 to 8 beating on the Capital city court.

The Y-Indus had little difficulty disposing of the Columbus team. It was the second time this season the locals have beaten the Columbus five. Opening the game with a fast offense Marion soon piled up an advantage that was never threatened. Columbus hit the net for but two field goals in the entire first half and got only one more in the second half.

Captain Bud Cram of the Y-Indus five was forced to shift his lineup on account of the absence of Bill Keller, first string back guard. Keller is out for a few days with an injured ankle. Osterholt took Keller's place at guard while Roush was moved from guard to forward.

In a preliminary to the Y-Indus game the Sparton A. C. of Harding High school staged a last half rally to defeat the Central Evening reserves 11 to 10.

The Spartons were badly beaten at the half, trailing the Columbus five 9 to 3. When the third period opened the Marion team got its offense working and took the count to 9-8 at the end of the frame. The game was cinched for Marion in the final period.

SHOULD THE CHILDREN EAT IT?

PARENTS, particularly mothers, are paying a lot of attention to children's diet these days. For it is far more economical and pleasant to keep a child well by feeding him correctly than by nursing and doctoring him back to health.

Of course the doctor should be consulted regarding what a child should eat and what he should not eat. But do you realize that the leading manufacturers of food now seek the advice and approval of the leading nutritional authorities in the country, relative to the claims they make for their products in their advertising?

In other words, food advertisements are reliable sources of information regarding diet. They are based upon the results of the latest approved scientific discoveries about vitamins, minerals and roughage, in relation to vigorous bodies, clear complexions, sound teeth and properly regulated systems.

So read these advertisements carefully. Consult your doctor about them. Very often the advertiser invites you to do this because he has asked authorities, whom your doctor respects, about those advertisements first.

MAX SCHMELING TO START BOXING TOUR OF SOUTH AND WEST

Eleven-Week Tour To Put Teuton in Shape for Stribling Fight.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—An eleven-weeks exhibition boxing tour of the south, southwest and middle west has been arranged for Max Schmeling to put the heavyweight champion in first-rate condition for his title bout with W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., sometime in June, somewhere in the midwest. The tour starts at Baltimore, Feb. 10, and ends under present plans, April 11 at Davenport, Ia.

Dates for the extensive barnstorming trip were announced today by Schmeling's handlers. In most of the cities, Schmeling will box exhibitions with sparring partners, in conjunction with regularly scheduled fight shows. In others, particularly in Texas, the Teuton slugger will make personal appearances and act as referee at wrestling matches.

In addition to his appearance in this country, the champion will make a hurried trip to Havana where he is booked for one exhibition.

Although most of the exhibitions have been definitely booked, a few have been left open and assigned to individual promoters to fill.

A's Trainer Believes Grove Good for Years

By The Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20--If old "Doc" Ebling, the bone and muscle mender for the Philadelphia Athletics, knows his athletes, Robert Moses Grove will continue to be a terror to opposing batsmen for years to come. He thinks the lanky left-hander is improving all the time.

"Doc" was busy packing liniments, salves, bandages and electrical apparatus for shipment to the A's spring training camp.

"We won't need much of this stuff for Lefty," he said. "Why the only first aid given Grove last year was a bit of adhesive tape now and then to cover the cracks at the end of his forefinger. He should go right along pitching and winning for at least fifteen years, maybe longer. I wouldn't be surprised if he sets up a record for length of service on the mound."

LEADERS FACE RANGERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—A duel at New York between the Montreal Canadians and the New York Rangers tops the National hockey league's schedule for tonight. The Canadians top their division in the league while the Rangers are in third place in the American group.

3 CRUCIAL CONTESTS BOOKED FOR BUCKEYE

Miami Meets Bobcats in Athens Tonight; Wesleyan Plays Wednesday.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20—Three crucial basketball battles will be waged this week within the Buckeye conference.

The Miami-Ohio university game at Athens tonight will place one of the teams in fourth place. Each team has lost two conference games. Miami has been given a slight advantage because of its victory over Depauw Saturday.

If Denison succeeds in beating Ohio Wesleyan when the two teams meet at Granville Wednesday night, they will be tied for the leadership. Ohio Wesleyan has won three straight games, and Denison has won two and lost one.

The Cincinnati Bearcats, who nearly defeated Wesleyan Saturday, also will have a chance to improve its position by beating Miami at Oxford next Saturday. If Denison loses to the Bishops, Cincinnati will have an opportunity to step into second place.

Conference statistics on the games played to date show that Walker, Denison forward, leads the league in scoring with 27 points. Myerly, Wesleyan center, is second with 23 points.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Butter prices scored still further drops today, sinking to a price range of 32 to 33 cents a pound The only reason given for the low prices is an oversupply of butter

Egg prices remained unchanged at a price range of 26 to 30 cents a dozen this morning

Among the dozens of little items which are finding active sales to round out the dinners of Marionites are button radishes at five and 10 cents a bunch, carrots at five cents a pound, endive at 20 cents a pound, and green mangoes at five cents each With out-of-state truck patches shipping in produce constantly, the local market is well supplied with a good variety of fruits and vegetables.

GRAINS SLUMP LOWER TODAY

Corn Gets Support as Feed Shortage Is Reported; Wheat Sags.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 — Grains averaged lower early today, influenced by downturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool, where Argentine offering were reported urgent and demand poor On declines, corn received support owing to talk that the country was short a billion bushels of all feed grains and hay. Opening unchanged to ⅝ lower, wheat held near to the initial range. Corn started ⅛@¼ off, and recovered somewhat.

With Argentine shippers reported anxious sellers at very low prices, the action of the Liverpool wheat market in disregard of advances here had a bearish effect. Arrivals of Russian wheat unsold at European centers were reported as also causing nervousness. Australian as well as Argentine wheat was said to be affected by low exchange rates and by estimates of prospective large shipments A check to bearish sentiment however, was word that domestic millers with export flour orders planned to borrow old crop wheat from the grain stabilization corporation, and later replace the borrowings with new crop wheat

Although corn and oats were responsive to wheat weakness, a sustaining factor was announcement that industries were bidding direct to rural holders of corn, and were offering prices above the market Corn primary receipts totaled 734,000 bushels, against 634,000 a week ago and 716,000 a year back Chicago arrivals were 88 cars, exactly the same as this time last week.

Provisions derived firmness from hog market upturns.

$15,000 ASKED IN BOY'S DEATH

Administrator of Estate Sues Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co.

Damages of $15,000 for the death of Daniel Mussie, 7, on Aug 28, 1929, are asked of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co in a suit filed today in common pleas court by William Mussie, administrator of the youth's estate.

Young Mussie was killed instantly when he was crushed beneath a freight car as he attempted to cross the defendant company's tracks The accident occurred where Guy street comes to a dead end on the railroad's east right-of-way and where Home street comes to a similar dead end on the west right-of-way.

Pedestrians who attempt to get from one street to the other must cross the tracks, although no regular crossing exists at the point, according to the petition.

The company is charged with negligence in that the locomotive which pulled the car that killed young Mussie allegedly failed to sound a warning The company also allegedly failed to erect signs forbidding the use of its right-of-way as a crossing point, the petition reads.

Answers Damage Suit

Charging that he did not ask the plaintiff to ride with him but that on the contrary the plaintiff himself solicited the "lift," Harry G Kohbarger, contractor, yesterday filed an answer in common pleas court to the $10,500 damage suit of David F. Schwartz

Schwartz, in his petition filed Dec. 22, claimed to have suffered severe injuries while riding in Kohbarger's automobile which allegedly turned over on route 23 near Carey last Jan. 9, 1930. The machine is claimed to have skidded on the icy highway.

Kohbarger admitted having Schwartz as his passenger but claims the latter solicited him for a ride at Fostoria as Kohbarger began a return trip to Marion.

Electric Company Sued

The suit of the Merchants Transfer Co. against the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. for $1,500 damages to a truck which figured in a collision with an interurban car here on May 18, 1927, finally was being heard in common pleas court today after several years of litigation.

The case is the first trial on the January civil docket and was being heard before a jury of eight men and four women.

The collision occurred when the plaintiff's truck, headed south on Oak street, attempted to cross Center street in the path of a westbound interurban passenger car. The impact hurled the truck on its side and allegedly injured the driver, J. W Peoples, who has a separate damage suit pending against the electric company.

B B Bridges of Columbus and Hector S Young of the law firm of Mouser Young Mouser & Wiant represent the plaintiff and the defendant firm is represented by its president, Attorney W. P. Moloney

Opinions from 11 Able Minds Form Dry Law Report

Careful Study Made by Well Chosen Commission

10 Men and One Woman, All of Wide Experience, Chosen from Major Geographical Section of Country for 20 Months' Inquiry.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 -- Into the report of President Hoover's law enforcement commission have gone opinions of 11 highly individual minds.

Ten men and a woman from major geographical divisions of the country brought wide experience and matured outlook to the most extensive investigation ever made into prohibition. They have considered this controversial subject about 20 months.

Chairman of the body is George W. Wickersham, former attorney general of the United States, whose 72 years have been crowded with activity. A tireless worker of nimble mind, he had carved his niche in national and international affairs before President Hoover selected him for his present post.

Direct and dynamic, he has a reputation of going to the core of a problem. The tempo of his activity is fast. His apparently boundless energy is the wonder and admiration of his associates.

Pittsburgh born, educated at Harvard and Lehigh universities, he has practiced law in Philadelphia and New York.

"Small But Mighty"

"Brief in stature but long in law" is how a friend described Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war who has plucked numerous laurels in the legal field. Of firm convictions, Baker stoutly defends his opinions with a tongue remarkably persuasive.

His facility of expression, poise and keen mind are quickly noted by acquaintances. Friends say he has the knack of winning his way without obnoxious aggressiveness.

A native of West Virginia, he went to Ohio as a young man to follow his profession. He was educated at Johns Hopkins and Washington and Lee universities.

"I am not and never have been a prohibitionist," Baker once wrote a clergyman.

Advocate of Tolerance

The president of Radcliffe college since 1923, Miss Ada L. Comstock, the only woman member of the commission, has been an outspoken advocate of tolerance during her long career as a leader of young women and as an educator. A defender of modern girls, she has said that the young women of today are as capable, honest and moral as those of any generation in history.

Regarded by other members as "one of the ablest of the group," she has worked diligently on the prohibition report.

She dresses conservatively, preferring quiet colors. Reserved, she is alert and learned. She prefers biography to other reading, and for years has been an enthusiastic walker. She once said her father's interest in literature probably was the most important influence in her life.

Minnesota is her native state, with the University of Minnesota and Smith college her dual alma mater.

Kenyon a Crusader

William S. Kenyon, tall and distinguished, has crusaded many years for enactment of his belief in laws. As a senator from Iowa, he was co-author of the Webb-Kenyon act which, before national prohibition made illegal the shipment of intoxicating liquor from a wet state into another that had adopted local option.

Among other posts he has been assistant attorney general of the United States, and judge of the United States circuit court of appeals.

Found a Hard Worker

One of the hardest workers on the commission has been Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard law school. This erudite son of Nebraska, who resembles a business man more than a professor, has come speedily back to his post after his twice-a-week lecture at Harvard.

His hobbies are botany and the study of the military history of the Civil war. He reads Latin and Greek, and his memory, particularly on legal subjects, is prodigious.

Stern Judge

William I. Grubb, federal judge of the northern district of Alabama, has been called one of the most severe judges in the country with respect to penalties for violation of the prohibition law. His ability is rated high by those who know him.

Very slender, he is below medium height; in manner, quiet and reserved. He is a "good listener," preferring to let the other person do the talking.

Judge Grubb was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, and educated at Yale. He is 68 years old.

Dean of Commission

At 78, Grank J. Loesch, Chicago lawyer, is the oldest person on the commission. Yet he is another Wickersham when it comes to fast-stepping, and he also has that same capacity for direct speech. He is genial, bold and unruffled.

A fearless prosecutor, he launched a campaign against corruption in public office some 20 years ago when he was a special state's attorney. He was active in organization of the body now known as the Chicago crime commission. He has served both as president and vice president of that body. Loesch was born at Buffalo and educated at Northwestern.

Prohibition, Loesch said, creates only about eight per cent of all law enforcement problems.

Lemann the Youngest

By five years, Monte M. Lemann of Louisiana is the youngest member of the commission, the average age of which is beyond 60. This soft-spoken lawyer from New Orleans is always well-dressed, with a flair for becoming colors. Both his bearing and work are distinguished.

Lemann for years has been recognized as a progressive leader of lawyers in his state. Numerous articles dealing with legal subjects have come from his pen. He has fought constantly for rigid law enforcement since he was admitted to the bar in 1907. Associates say he weighs arguments most carefully.

Model of Fashion

To make a good job of it, Kenneth Mackintosh moved his residence from Tacoma, Wash., so he could be near his new work. He is a rival of Lemann in what the well-dressed lawyer should wear. Distinguished and well poised, he is generally popular.

The Universities of Washington, Stanford and Columbia contributed to his education. County prosecuting attorney, superior court judge, associate judge of the supreme court and chief justice have been successive milestones of his progress in his native state of Washington.

Paul J. McCormick, Los Angeles judge, is credited by his friends with being a profound student of the social sciences. His disarming, democratic demeanor makes conversation easy.

A federal judge of Southern California since 1924, he has presided over and decided some big cases involving oil frauds. He has served as assistant district attorney of Los Angeles county, judge of the superior court of California and associate justice of the California court of appeals.

His 51 years make him next to the youngest commissioner.

Bachelor Member

Henry W. Anderson, bachelor member of the commission, is one of Virginia's best-known citizens and outstanding lawyers. Originally a Democrat he became an independent as a consequence of his opposition to free silver in 1896. For years he has been a leader in Republican party affairs in his state and was the Republican nominee for governor in 1921.

WILL RESUME SEA SEARCH FOR GOLD

Wreck of Salvage Tug Not To Halt Undersea Hunt for Lost Ingot Cargo.

By United Press

BREST, France, Jan. 20--The $5,000,000 in gold ingots which lie under the ocean near here in the wreck of the British liner Egypt may not be lost after all, as was feared after the recent explosion of the salvage tug Artiglio. The Rostro, sister ship of the Artiglio, is being equipped to resume the salvage attempt.

For the last two years the Rostro and Artiglio, both belonging to an Italian company, searched amidst the war time wrecks off the coast to find the Egypt, sunk in seven fathoms of water.

When the Artiglio blew up early last month and 12 of her crew lost their lives, the principal plans showing the position of the Egypt and giving minute details of the best manner to reach the treasure were lost. Happily, however, the seven men saved from the explosion have been able to reconstruct from memory a new plan, on which the Rostro will work.

All the valuable salvage gear of the Artiglio has been lost, but the Rostro since has gone back to Milan and been equipped with similar apparatus. The Artiglio's crack diver, Francheschi, one of the victims of the explosion, broke all records for deep sea diving when he descended 71 fathoms in seeking the Egypt.

The Rostro will resume the undersea gold hunt in the spring when the winter gales from the Atlantic will have been subsided and tides will not be so strong. The seven survivors of the Artiglio will then be among the crew of the Rostro, to give them benefit of the valuable experience they acquired.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

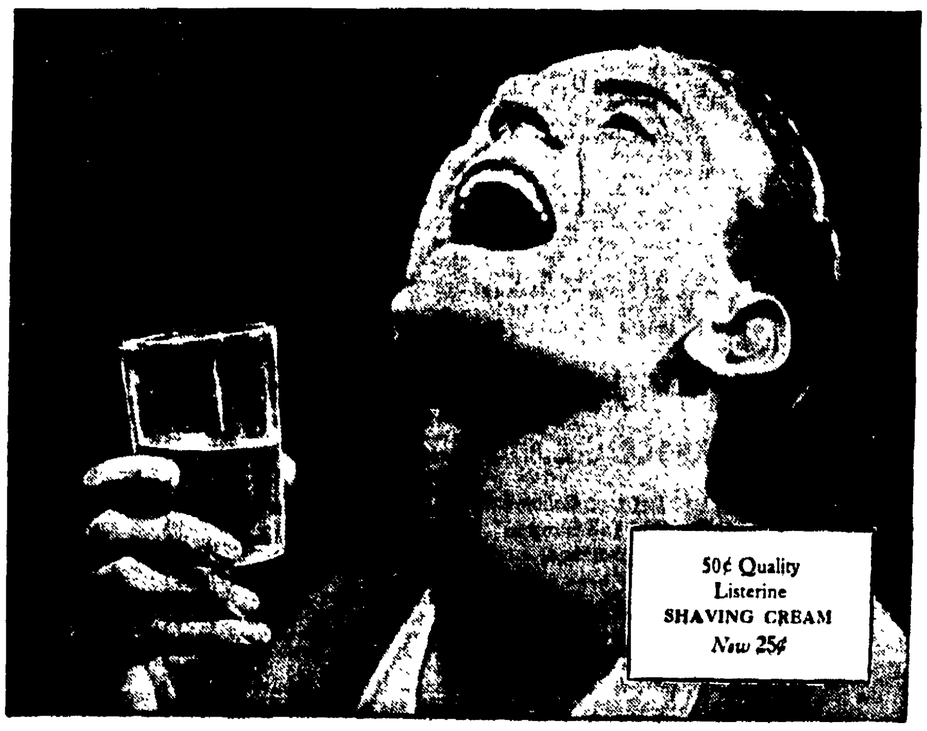
at the first sign of IRRITATED THROAT



gargle with Listerine— reduces germs 98%

NEVER make the mistake of underestimating the menace of a cold or sore throat. Either may develop into serious or fatal complications. You can probably recall such a case among your friends. Statistics show that every year respiratory diseases cause more than a million deaths.

At the first sign of trouble, gargle every two hours with full strength Listerine, the safe, healing antiseptic, and call your physician. If the irritation is mild, Listerine will frequently check it. If it is not, the doctor will diagnose the real trouble and treat it properly.

Reduces mouth germs 98%

Against ordinary colds and sore throat, full strength Listerine is amazingly effective. That is because it is fatal to all germs which cause such infection. Kills them by millions in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Repeated tests show that full strength Listerine actually reduces the number of germs on mouth surfaces 98%. And at the same time it stimulates mouth tissue.

Gargle every 2 hours

In time of sickness the gargle every two hours is needed to keep dangerous and swiftly multiplying germs under control.

In time of normal health, however, the night and morning gargle will be sufficient to maintain a hygienic condition in the mouth.

Non-poisonous, Safe

The most convincing proof of Listerine's germicidal strength is its ability to kill Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) germs in counts ranging to 200,000,000 in 15 seconds. Staphylococcus Aureus is highly resistant to germicidal action and is therefore specified as the germ by which all germicides are tested.

Keep Listerine handy in home and office and use it full strength for all infections. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

"EAST LYNNE" CAST SET FOR PRODUCTION

Final Rehearsal Held for Mimes' Play; To Be Given Wednesday, Thursday.

Last rehearsal for "East Lynne" was held in the Ohio theater last night. Director W. W. Clarke is giving his cast a rest tonight.

And the show, the Mimes play to be presented at the theater Wednesday and Thursday nights, went smoothly, or as smoothly as any last rehearsal goes, with final directions to be issued by the director, lighting effects to be arranged and last-minute stage details to be worked out, the director said.

With the exception of two rehearsals on the theater stage in which to become accustomed to its furnishings and its depth, the Mimes practices for "East Lynne" were all held at Mr. Clarke's home.

Last night the quartet sang. A group of four musicians will accompany the quartet and will play a short program of music before the curtain rises Wednesday and Thursday nights. Miss Margaret Hoover and Newman Browarsky play violins, Miss Clara Leffler, the cello, and Edgar Barnhart will accompany at the piano.

The quartet will occupy the front box on the right of the theater and several Mimes members in costumes will sit in the left front box. From the directions issued last night, these persons in the boxes will lead the audience in hissing the villain, applauding virtue and adding atmosphere to the theater.

ANNUAL ICE HARVEST ON

Thousands of Men in Lake Erie Force Now Busy at Work.

By United Press

SANDUSKY, O., Jan. 20—On the windswept miles of frozen Lake Erie thousands of men were at work today in the annual harvesting of ice.

In little groups off the shores near Port Clinton, Sandusky, Lorain, Painesville, Ashtabula and Conneaut, the harvesters were scattered, looking like little black pygmies out on the board white plain. Close up they look different.

First is the horse-drawn scraper that clears the snow off the surface. Nothing "rots" ice in the storehouses so fast as snow, the old ice harvesters will tell you. Sometimes the ice is clear of snow. Then the markers move right onto it.

Marker Is Horse-Drawn

The marker is a sort of plow drawn by a horse in long, straight lines across the surface scratching grooves in the surface to the size of the cakes to be cut.

Next come the cutters, bands of men each with a giant crosscut saw with a handle across one end. At a hole in the ice the saw is started, one end of it extending down into the water. The men stand and saw along the groves left by the marker.

Mufflers, sweaters and heavy gloves are part of each man's equipment despite the hard physical exercise of the work, for the wind has nothing to stop it on its sweep across the white miles.

Other saws have cut a long narrow channel from the field to be cut to the handling places along the shore.

Moved to Shore

Along this channel or runway stand men with long steel-shod pics. They prod the floating cakes along from one to the other toward short keeping a constant stream of them moving to the handlers.

Lofty dark ice houses with no windows are the chief destination for the cakes. These gaunt structures dot the shores particularly in the Sandusky bay and the island sections where fishing companies need great supplies to preserve their catches each year.

Prohibition Analyzed After Twenty Months of Study

Board Sees Improvement but Also Room for More

Some Not Convinced Amendment Is Unfavorable and Recommend Further Trial with Help of Stronger Statutes and Adequate Forces.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—The enforcement commission summarizes its prohibition report as follows:

Conclusions and recommendations in the report on the enforcement of the prohibition laws of the United States.

The commission is opposed to repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

The commission is opposed to modification in any manner of the present saloon.

The commission is opposed to action by state governments, amounting into the liquor traffic.

The commission is opposed to any legislation to modify the national prohibition act so as to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

The commission is of opinion that cooperation of the states is an essential element in the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act throughout the territory of the United States; that the support of public opinion in the several states is necessary in order to secure such cooperation.

Improvement Seen

The commission is of opinion that subsequent to the enactment of the national prohibition act, 1927, the machinery for enforcement were inadequately organized and inadequate; that subsequent to that enactment there has been continued improvement in organization and effort toward enforcement.

The commission is of opinion that while there is yet no adequate obedience to or enforcement.

The commission is of opinion that the present organization for enforcement is still adequate.

The commission is of opinion that the federal appropriations for enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment should be substantially increased and that the vigorous and better organized efforts which have gone on since the bureau of prohibition act, 1927, should be furthered by certain improvements in the statutes and in the organization personnel, and equipment of enforcement, so as to give enforcement the greatest practicable efficiency.

Divergent Opinions

"10. Some of the commission are not convinced that prohibition under the Eighteenth amendment is unenforceable and believe that a further trial should be made with the help of the recommended improvements, and that if after such trial effective enforcement is not secured there should be a revision of the amendment. Others of the commission are convinced that it has been demonstrated that prohibition under the Eighteenth amendment is unenforceable and that the amendment should be immediately revised, but recognizing that the process of amendment will require some time, they unite in the recommendations of conclusion No. 9, for the improvement of the enforcement agencies.

"11. All the commission agree that if the amendment is revised it should be made to read substantially as follows:

"Section 1. The congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes.

Use for Medical Purposes

"12. The recommendations referred to in conclusion Number 9 are:

1. Removal of the causes of irritation and resentment on the part of the medical profession by: (A) Doing away with the statutory fixing of the amount which may be prescribed and the number of prescriptions; (B) Abolition of the requirement of specifying the ailment for which liquor is prescribed upon a blank to go into the public files; (C) Leaving as much as possible to regulations rather than fixing details by statute.

"2. Removal of the anomalous provisions in section 29, national prohibition act, as to cider and fruit juices by making some uniform provision for a fixed alcoholic content.

"5. Increase of the number of agents, storekeeper-gaugers, prohibition investigators, and special agents; increase in the personnel of the customs bureau and in the equipment of all enforcement organizations.

"4. Enactment of a statute authorizing regulations permitting access to the premises and records of wholesale and retail dealers so as to make it possible to trace products of specially denatured alcohol to the ultimate consumer.

"5. Enactment of legislation to prohibit independent denaturing plants.

Opposes Search Extension

"6. The commission is opposed to legislation allowing more latitude for federal searches and seizures.

"7. The commission renews the recommendation contained in its previous reports for codification of the national prohibition act and the acts supplemental to and in amendment thereof.

"8. The commission renews its recommendation of legislation for making procedure in the so-called padlock injunction cases more effective.

"9. The commission recommends legislation providing a mode of prosecuting petty offenses in the federal courts and modifying the increased penalties act of 1929, as set forth in the chairman's letter to the attorney general dated May 23, 1930, H. R. Rep. 1,698.

"There are differences of view among the members of the commission as to certain of the conclusions stated and as to some matters included in or omitted from this report. The report is signed subject to individual reservation of the right to express these individual views in separate or supplemental reports to be annexed hereto.

"George W. Wickersham, chairman; Henry W. Anderson, Newton D. Baker, Ada L. Comstock, William I. Grubb, William S. Kenyon, Frank J. Loesch, Paul J. McCormick, Kenneth MacIntosh, Roscoe Pound.

PINCHOT NOW STATE GOVERNMENT HEAD

Attack on Public Utilities Features Fiery Inaugural Speech.

By International News Service

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 20—Gifford Pinchot, outspoken foe of public utilities combines, pronounced "dry" and already mentioned as a factor to be considered in 1932 Presidential prognostications, today became Pennsylvania's 44th governor. He succeeded John S. Fisher, who four years ago succeeded Pinchot. Both are Republicans.

Governor Pinchot climaxed his inaugural oath with a slashing excoriation of political chicanery, flayed public utilities for their political activities, reaffirmed his personal and political faith in the 18th amendment and declared the nation's greatest need to be a solution of the unemployment problem.

The salient feature of the inaugural address was Pinchot's attack on public utilities. In concise, biting phrases, he accused the utilities interests of attempting to nullify popular government in every state in the union.

Referring to the utilities interests, he declared that "their effort to control the affairs of this commonwealth is part of the wider attempt of the same men to control the nation."

"I deny the right of this invisible government to exist in free America," he concluded.

BACHELOR MEMBER OF COMMISSION A FIGHTER

Anderson, Author of Modification Report, Relishes Thrill of Conflict.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In days of old Henry W. Anderson might have carried a shining lance and worn a gay plume.

The crash of spearhead against armor would have been music to his ears. In legal activities he greatly relishes the business of rushing to the attack; he is regarded by friends as a lawyer who will battle tenaciously and brilliantly for a cause. He has a wide reputation as a successful corporation attorney.

Tall, blond, with hair now white, this 60-year-old Virginian of vigorous physique has a keen, analytical mind. He is an indefatigable worker and considered by associates a profound student and convincing speaker.

* * *

ALTHOUGH a bachelor Anderson maintains a large home which contains one of the best private libraries in Richmond. He often entertains friends. They term him an engaging host.

He has membership in several exclusive clubs

Originally a Democrat Anderson became an independent because of his opposition to the free silver movement in 1896. He has been an active Republican since the election as president of the late William Howard Taft.

Republican nominee for governor of Virginia in 1921 he has been endorsed in the past by the Republican state committee for vice president of the United States

* * *

HERE are some Anderson epigrams:

"Men are weary of tutelage in both domestic and international affairs. They resent having every phase of personal or community life dictated by others."

"All progress, social, intellectual or physical, is a product of conflicting forces. Out of a conflict of opposites comes an appreciation of the truth."

"It is the history of the world that no majority ever institutes reforms, since change endangers its power. From the Christian religion to the humblest movement, every advance in human freedom has been begun by the minority."

His activity in Virginia politics has made him a power in his party in the Old Dominion. He has written his party's platform in Virginia, and played a part in drafting Republican national platforms.

Several federal appointments have come to him, among which were special assistant to the attorney general of the United States and United States member of the Mexican Claims commission

SEES SECULAR LINES VANISH

Catholic, Jew, Protestant Move to Same Ground, Pastors Are Told.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20—A new attitude of good will and sympathetic understanding is developing among the three great religious groups—Catholic, Jewish and Protestant—as a result of a common challenge they all face from a world that ignores the message of any of them, Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches told the Ohio Pastors convention here today.

"Face to face with a secular view of life which falsely assumes that it can explain everything without God; with a new sensualism in literature and on the stage which runs counter to the principles of Christian living, and with social and international relations administered without reference to the Christian principle of love," the speaker said, "all the churches which share a common faith in God are summoned to find an effective working unity."

Asserting that what the various denominations have in common is far more important than the things in which they differ, Cavert said the Church federation movement is bringing the Protestant churches into better understanding and friendly co-operation with the Catholic and Jewish churches. By uniting among themselves, he added, the Protestant groups are able to enter into better working relations with the other bodies

As an example of cooperation, Cavert pointed to a conference on permanent preventives of unemployment to be held at Washington next week under the joint auspices of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the National Catholic Welfare conference and the Central conference of American Rabbis.

BOW-DE BOE TRIAL TAMED DOWN NOW

Everybody Yawning Since Judge Ruled Out Spicy Testimony.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 20—A legal curtain shielded the private life of Clara Bow from the public gaze in the trial of her former secretary, Daisy De Boe, on grand theft charges, today.

Daisy's promised exposure of the intimate affairs of the film redhead fizzled quickly yesterday and the Bow-De Boe audience frankly matched the jurors yawn for yawn.

Clara's ex-secretary was shushed by Superior Judge William C. Doran before she could unlimber a single bombshell, the court ruling that the issue was simply whether Miss De Boe stole $15,200 from the actress, and that mud-slinging was not in order

The judge decided Daisy had told enough. She previously had testified of the redhead's alleged gifts to by friends and liquor purchases and had identified impassioned love letters and telegrams to Clara from various admirers.

Looking wan but very pleased in her big canopied bed Daisy's former boss sighed with satisfaction at the court's action.

"You'd have thought I was the one being tried, instead of Daisy," said Clara, tossing her head indignantly.

FERRET RUNS WILD

Neighbors Call Police To Capture "Strange" Animal.

"There's an animal running around up here. Nobody knows what it is. Send someone up right away."

That was the urgent message an excited North Prospect street resident called into police station this morning.

Hopes of capturing a cross breed freak which might have escaped from a circus sideshow grew in the hearts of officials as they hurried to the scene.

The freak animal was an ordinary ferret, evidently escaped from its pen. The snarling little animal was taken to police station while a hunt for its owner is being made

REBUKE FOLLOWS ACTION OF CONGRESS

Red Cross Voices Objections to Voting of Government Fund.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Congress came to work today with notice from the Red Cross that if it persists in appropriating $25,000,000 to it for relief, the fund will be received unwillingly.

While the worried administration leaders of the house puzzled over how to defeat the provision which the senate attached to the interior department bill yesterday by a 58 to 27 vote, the central committee of the relief agency last night adopted and made public a resolution asserting:

"We consider ourselves charged with the responsibility in the drouth area; we are meeting the needs and will continue to do so."

Makes Position Clear

The statement declared the Red Cross wished to remain a volunteer organization, and to stick to the fundamental principle of popular contributions on which it has operated since organization.

FIND ENFORCEMENT MUST BE IMPROVED

Members Recognize Benefits of Prohibition, but Condemn Conditions That Prevail.

As it now stands, the amendment reads:

"The manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited. The congress and the several states shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

Anderson Is Thorough

Mr. Anderson's opinion was by far the most exhaustive of the 11 individual papers. His plan for government-controlled liquor sales would be based on the amendment suggested to replace the present Eighteenth amendment, if such a revision should be entered into.

The Virginian called the Swedish sytsem "by far the most successful of any existing system of liquor control."

The report of the commission as a whole embodies a review of the voluminous evidence taken over a period of more than a year and a half. It includes a frank discussion of conditions.

"It is safe to say," said the commission, "that a significant change has taken place in the social attitude toward drinking * * *

"It is evident that taking the country as a whole, people of wealth, business men and professional men, and their families are drinking in large numbers in quite frank disregard of the declared policy of the national prohibition act."

Canada Chief Source

Turning to the sources of illicit liquor, the commission asserted that "importation is chiefly from Canada; both directly and indirectly." It touched also upon rum coming from the West Indies, "brandy from France, and gin from Holland."

The diversion of industrial alcohol, the report said, presented a "grave danger," in certain phases, adding

"Much as the present situation is an improvement upon the bad conditions of some years ago, it is still far from satisfactory from the standpoint of prohibition. There are too many opportunities for leaks."

Nevertheless, the commission said, "illicit distilling has become for the time being the chief source of supply.

"In place of the small still operated by the individual moonshiner, there are plants of a capacity fairly comparable to the old-time lawful distillery. * * *

"The business of maintaining and operating them is well organized, has found how to shift locations systematically and has learned to calculate for seizures and destructions of stills as part of the overhead

Evidence of Weakness

The commission concluded that as a consequence of this "high development of illicit distilling," a "steady volume of whiskey, much of it of good quality, is put in circulation." It added that the "prices at which it is obtainable are a convincing testimony to the ineffectiveness of enforcement against this source of supply."

As for the making of wine and beer in the home, the commission concluded that "necessity seems to compel the virtual abandonment of efforts for effective enforcement at this point," adding however, that "this is done at the price of nullification to that extent." A recommendation was made for:

"Removal of the anomalous provisions in section 29, national prohibition act, as to cider and fruit juices by making some uniform provision for a fixed alcoholic content."

It is under section 29 that grape concentrate concerns are selling their product.

"Why home wine making should be lawful while home brewing of beer and home-distilling of spirits are not, why home wine making for home is less reprehensible than making the same wine outside the home for home use, and why it should be penal to make wine commercially for use in homes, and not penal to make in huge quantities the material for wine making and set up an elaborate selling campaign for disposing of them, is not apparent."

Discuss Medical Feature

In explaining its medicinal liquor recommendation, the commission said:

"We are satisfied that in several particulars the causes of resentment on the part of the medical profession operate against a favorable public opinion to such an extent as to outweigh the advantages to enforcement.

The commission hit out [illegible] county at the failure of the [illegible] prohibition forces to [illegible] real leaders of the [illegible] business.

"It is common [illegible] general sources [illegible] with enforcement [illegible] prohibitory [illegible] lers or [illegible] ready [illegible]

Modification Proposal Submitted by Anderson

Report of Virginia Member Recommended for Consideration by Five Others of Commission; Three Optional Plans Provided.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 — Here is the gist of the plan for modification of the prohibition amendment proposed by Henry W. Anderson, and recommended for consideration by law enforcement commissioners Kenyon, Loesch, MacIntosh, McCormick and Pound:

"It is proposed that as soon as practicable, by appropriate action of congress and of the states, the Eighteenth amendment be modified or revised . . . as follows:

"The congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof, for beverage purposes."

"This modification would bring the amendment into conformity with the traditional principles of our system of government

Power of Congress

"Under the proposed amendment as modified, congress would have full power (1) to continue the present system of absolute national prohibition, or (2) to remit the matter in whole or in part to the states, or (3) to adopt any system of effective control. Since greater flexibility is one of the outstanding needs of the present system, this modification should be made even if the policy of absolute national prohibition is to be continued

"That congress should then create a bipartisan national commission on liquor control, which should have full power under such laws as congress might enact to regulate and control the manufacture, importation, exportation, transportation in interstate commerce, and also the sale, as and to the extent hereinafter stated, of intoxicating liquors of more than one half of one per centum alcoholic content, for beverage purposes; and to exercise similar regulation and control over alcoholic liquors for other purposes, and of industrial alcohol, to the full extent necessary to render the system of control of such liquors for beverage purposes effective

Similar to Other Boards

"The powers of the commission as to the regulation and control of the traffic indicated and of the agencies created for the purposes thereof should be fully as complete as those of the interstate commerce commission over railroads and should in every respect be adequate for the purposes of the law.

"That congress should create a national corporation for the purpose of the plan, all of the stock of which should be privately owned, or in its discretion a number of such corporations, such as one for each judicial circuit. * * *

"It should be vested with the exclusive right and power (to be exercised under the control and regulations of the national commission) of manufacture, importation, exportation and transportation in interstate commerce, and of sale and to the extent hereafter stated, of all alcoholic liquors for beverage, as well as for medicinal and sacramental purposes.

"The financial plan of the corporation * * * should provide for an issue of stock of only one class to be sold at par. * * *

"The commission should have power to prescribe the alcoholic content of the various kinds and grades of liquors

"The corporation should only be allowed to make sales and shipment of such liquors in any state to a corporate agency created by such state, similar in general character to the national corporation, for the purpose of the purchase and distribution and local sale of such liquors within the state and if and to the extent permitted by the laws thereof.

State Option

"If the state at its option elected not to adopt the system it could establish or continue prohibition, in which event it would have to enforce its own laws within the state, but the federal law would not permit sales or shipments into that state by the national corporation except through the state in bonds. * * *

"The price at which the various liquors should be sold by the national corporation should be fixed or approved by the commission. * * * the prices should be based primarily upon and scaled upward on the basis of alcoholic content—the lower prices on low alcoholic content liquors such as light wine and beer, and the highest prices practicable on high alcoholic content liquors, such as whiskies and [illegible]

[illegible] should be issued by the state agency nearest the fixed abode or voting placed on the holder under regulations of the commision.

"The amount of wine and beer below an alcoholic content to be fixed from time to time by the appropriate commission might or might not be limited to a reasonable quantity in any month, having a regard to the proposed use by the purchaser with a view to limiting the use and preventing purchases for illegitimate purposes.

"Upon conviction for violation of the law, for drunkenness or other cause provided by law, the book should be cancelled for such time as might be prescribed.

"All state and national regulations should seek to restrict sales and use as far as may be done, without leaving a possible demand which could be supplied at a profit by bootleggers * * * No advertisement or alcoholic liquors or solicitations of purchases should be permitted.

"The excess revenues from the operations of the national corporation would go into the federal treasury, and those from the operations of the state corporation and its branches would go into the state treasury."

As an echo of the proposal of Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, that the United States buy Lower California and a part of the state of Sonora from Mexico, a number of Mexican national deputies have suggested that Mexico buy a tract of land in Arizona from the United States. Even though it should develop that the tract sought includes Prescott, the United States could hardly afford to pay in that way for deliverance.

"No one who wears spats," remarks Lewis Gannett, "can get far in America." We now assume that what we took for spats in a comparatively recent newspaper picture of J. P. Morgan were socks which had fallen down over the tops of his shoes.

President Hoover has enlisted the aid of his predecessor in office, Mr. Coolidge, and his opponent in the presidential campaign of 1928, Mr. Smith, in the drive for public subscriptions to the $10,000,000 Red Cross drought relief fund. The President may not be a politician, as has been so often urged, but by securing the consent of the two distinguished Americans to handle the drive he certainly put one over upon the senators whose course has resulted in handicapping it.

The Changes Worked at Niagara.

One of the world's greatest scenic wonders has undergone a change. A mighty section of the cliff over which the waters of the Niagara river run to make the American division of Niagara falls has succumbed to erosion and been swept away by the force of the torrest and is now a crumbled mass of rocks in the bed of the stream 167 feet below.

Unlike the Canadian falls, which recede at an average rate of 2.3 feet a year, the outline of the American falls has shown little recession in centuries as the result of erosion, the rate being only about an inch a year. This was true until some time between 10 o'clock Saturday night and 6 o'clock Sunday morning. At some time between these hours the most marked change the falls have undergone within the memory of man was wrought. Some time during the eight hours mentioned, the mighty mass of rock crashed leaving an indentation in the 1,400 foot face of the falls which is estimated to be 150 feet wide and to extend backward into the cliff from 150 to 200 feet. Like the changes which time has wrought to most of the other scenic wonders of the world, that during the past week-end was unwitnessed by the eye of man.

As the many millions who have visited Niagara know, the Canadian falls, though ten feet lower than the American, are much wider as well as much more picturesque, being in the form of a great crescent 2,600 feet around its rim. It is probably owing to its contour that the Canadian waterfall suffers from erosion twenty-five times as greatly as the American. Who knows? This great U-shaped cut having been made in the brink of the American falls, they in time, like the Canadian, may take the form of a great horseshoe and present to visitors, many centuries hence, another great curved waterfall, making two where today there is but one.

Still at the present rate of recession on the Canadian side, that possibility is a long, long time away. Scientists estimate that it took 25,000 years to produce the Niagara river, the two waterfalls and the gorge as they are today.

Chicago Can Redeem Herself.

To be on the safe side, it is always well to take the stories coming out of Chicago regarding the progress being made in the campaign of its decent citizenship against its criminal world with a grain or two of salt. There is an enthusiasm in the Chicago papers' accounts of the gains made against the foes of law, order and government which is remindful of that of the artists who depicts upon the banners suspended in front of the sideshow the wonders to be seen therein. Patrons of circus shows who while away the time while awaiting the opening of the performance inside the big tent by expending a quarter and viewing the wonders from many climes exhibited in the side show exposition will readily get our meaning

But if the latest reported seizure by the Chicago detective forces securing evidence for the grand jury up there investigating the activities of gangsters is based upon facts, the conditions which exist in the country's second city are even worse than has previously been imagined.

As the result of a raid, made by squads of tried and trusted detectives of the Windy City's police department, on the Rex hotel there, from which the Capone henchmen have for years been sent out to deal in liquor, gambling and vice, two safes were seized which were found to be filled with records which the authorities say are "astounding." One Chicago paper says these records show the tentacles of graft reach into every branch of the government of Cook county and "into the congress of the United States itself." The same paper quotes an assistant state's attorney as saying: "We found names on the 'pay-off' list that we don't even dare to talk about as yet."

Another Chicago paper says that, as the result of the raid, numerous books and ledgers showing operations and earnings, together with records of payments to policemen, politicians and public officials "are reported to have fallen into the raiders' hands," and are now in the possession of the grand jury.

Regarding the immediate effect of the raid, there can be little question. The papers of the city are as one regarding the scare which has been thrown into the South Side vice district. Canvasses by reporters of the different papers showed that virtually every speakeasy and gambling place in the district had been closed immediately following the raid on the hotel and the seizure of the two safes, from which it may be taken that Chicago's underworld is at least temporarily scared.

It has been held that crime has such a hold upon the city of Chicago that its tentacles can not be broken. And possibly this would hold true under the conditions which long have held there, conditions which showed the decent citizenship passive, if not indifferent, and authority and crime in collusion. But whenever the decent, law-abiding people of Chicago, or any other city, actually become determined to suppress crime and persist in that determination, crime, at least organized crime, can be overcome. The great overwhelming majority of every citizenship is honest and wants to be law-abiding, and this is true in Chicago. If the people of that city are really committed to the suppression of the city's gunmen, gangsters, racketeers and crooks, Chicago's criminal world is doomed. The result will show whether the present campaign is a real honest effort on the part of the people up there to overcome crime, or merely another of the flashes in the pan of which the big city on the lake has had so many.

The Brazilian government is seeking to purchase the eleven Italian planes which flew to South America from Europe recently and pay for them with coffee. How could coffee be profitably used in Europe where nobody seems to know how to transform the bean into a delicious drink?

From Paris comes confirmation of the recent announcement that Jean Jules Verne, a grandson of the imaginative writer who forecasted the coming of many of the most striking inventions of the present century, will be a member of the Wilkins expedition to seek the North pole by submarine an' seek to realize his grandfather's stirring tale, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The presence of the young Rouen attorney as a member of the expedition may, and probably will, add to the interest in it, but it can hardly be held that it will augment the chances for the success of the venture.

"The greatest danger to Christianity lies not in unbelievers who attack it," says Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, "but in believers who belittle it." Food for thought, here, in this view that not its enemies, but its pretended friends are the real menaces to the Christian church.

William V. King, former chief accountant of the federal power commission who was let out with the other employes of that body when the new commissioners took office, has been selected for the position he formerly occupied, but the commission refuses to take on Charles A. Russell, the former solicitor. This action of the commission should lessen the awful wrath of the senate insurgents and their Democratic allies at least fifty per cent., but it probably will not have that effect. They will probably meet the new situation by doubling up their wrath over the rejection of Russell

Well, well! Editorial Opinion.

A FLAW IN OUR TAX SYSTEM.

Much as we might like to forget about 1930, there are some observations growing out of that year's economic phenomena which require attention. These come to light gradually as statistics are brought into workable form. A notable case is the effect of our federal income tax laws on the operation of the security markets.

The last two months of 1930, and particularly the last few days, witnessed tremendous selling of stocks, forcing prices away below proper levels. In part this may have been due to the need for ready cash and other embarrassments. But in great measure it represents liquidation by security holders who chose to take losses and offset them against earlier gains, and thus to reduce their income taxes, rather than carry their holdings longer.

So does the income tax law, a man-made device for raising public funds, operate to disturb the natural functioning of the security markets and to accentuate any tendency toward weakness. But this is only half the sad story. A year or so earlier the same tax levy had precisely the opposite effect, deterring holders from selling and taking profits, because they did not wish to pay a federal tax on such profits. Inflation was carried to extreme lengths, therefore, partly because of this distributing principle of taxation.

Government's every effort in these days is devoted to stabilizing business—supposedly. Yet little has been said of this governmental device which accelerates inflation and accelerates depression. The President has suggested a change of this law, but the congress has not responded. Admittedly it is a knotty problem to draft an adequate substitute for the tax on capital gains. But that is what we have legislators for. Here is a step that congress can take to safeguard our business organism, and without any revolving fund or complex machinery of administration to drain the treasury.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Where Taylor Won First Promotion.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

It was while holding a small command under General William Henry Harrison in the War of 1812 that Zachary Taylor, later to be the twelfth president of the United States, first called attention to himself as a brave and skilful officer, and won promotion. The death of an older brother who had held a lieutenancy in the army, left a vacancy to which Zachary was appointed in 1808, and in 1810 he had reached the rank of captain. While General Harrison was conducting his major operations from his headquarters in Northwestern Ohio, Captain Taylor was placed in command of Fort Harrison on the Wabash. He had but fifty men under him and two-thirds of these were ill with fever, when a superior force of Indians under Tecumseh planned to destroy his command. A party of Indians who came to the fort in need of food and clothing, and claiming to be friendly, was given food by Captain Taylor, but suspecting treachery, he refused to permit them to enter the fort.

A number of things had led the captain to suspect that there were many Indians lying in hiding about the fort, and the night following his refusal to admit the "friendly" Indians, fire was set to one of the block houses of the fort. Through the breach made by its burning, parties of Indians sought repeatedly to rush, but were repelled. A cabin inside the enclosure was torn down and reconstructed in the place of the burned block house, and thus the garrison was saved. But as the fort stores were in the burned block house, the garrison was left in desperate circumstances.

The Indians finally withdrew when they found that neither by tricks nor assault could they take the fort, and Captain Taylor managed to dispatch messengers to Vincennes for aid. He was duly praised by his superior officers for his defense of the fort, which is to be compared to the defense of Fort Stephenson by Croghan, and promoted to the rank of major, thus setting the feet of the young officer in the direction of the White House.

Although he came to this county from Canada in 1899 and had voted here for years, Benjamin Leavens discovered that he was not a citizen, having taken out only his first papers. His attention was called to the error of his belief by reading of the case of Louis Bossing, a few days before.

A Hand-Borne Disease.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Many germs, some of them capable of causing disease, are carried by the hands. Influenza is one such. In times of epidemics of colds and influenza, if more care on the part of the public were exercised, there would be less danger from these infectious diseases.

Just what germ causes influenza and what is its remedy, are questions which have not been solved as yet. But one thing we do know: it is largely hand-borne

The terrible epidemic of influenza in 1918 caused the whole world to suffer from the disease. Since that time scientists have been busy trying to solve the problem of its source and remedy. Laboratories everywhere have made and are making studies of the disease.

We know there are two general types of dangerous germs. The first are those which invade the tissues and live and multiply inside them. The other are those germs that gain admission to the body and then produce certain poisons which get into the bloodstream and are carried throughout the system.

It would seem that the influenza germ belongs to this latter type, for the reason that its effects are felt so generally in the system. There are dizziness, headache, pain in the back, sore eyes, and other symptoms.

No matter how severe the type of influenza in a given epidemic, the patient rarely dies from the disease. It is the complication, particularly of pneumonia, or pleurisy, that is likely to prove serious. Also, other serious complications may arise, for instance, a serious involvement of the nervous system. This is not unusual. There may be trouble with the kidneys or other organs.

One who is attacked by a severe cold, or the symptoms of influenza, should go at once to bed and make a business of getting well. When you do this, the other infectious germs have less opportunity to engraft themselves upon your system.

The serious thing about influenza, and of all the acute respiratory diseases, is that secondary infections may take place. The germs of the pus-producing germs, and other unfriendly agents, are all the time seeking admission to the human body.

Because of the danger of infection from contact with people in crowded street cars, theaters and other public places, you should think of the dangers of infection from the sneezing and coughing of persons near you Always cover your own mouth and nose with the handkerchief when you have such a neighbor. Take pains to guard others by covering your face if you sneeze or cough.

When colds and influenza are prevalent, avoid kissing your family, for by this means there may be passed on to others your own unsuspected infection. Every one should wash the hands frequently and attend carefully to the toilet of the mouth and nose. All children should be taught these things.

An influenza patient should be isolated from others. The household utensils used by the patient, such as dishes and silver, should be thoroughly boiled after using. Everything touched by the sick person—bedding, towels, washcloths, soap—should be cleansed thoroughly before being used by another person.

When influenza is prevalent, it is important to have plenty of sleep, fresh air, day and night, all the sunlight possible, and simple food. Have regular exercise and regular habits of living. In this way you build up resistance to the infectious diseases. Above all else, don't worry!

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MISS C. T. R. Q—Do you advise reducing salts?

A—No. They are apt to prove weakening. Weight reduction is chiefly a matter of control in regard to diet.

• • •

C. M. Q—What would you advise for dark circles under the eyes?

A—This trouble may be due to constipation, loss of sleep, anemia or to a general run down system. Try to find the cause and the treatment will probably suggest itself. If the elimination is sluggish the diet may be a factor.

• • •

The Aim of Education.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most immediate and pressing problems in America is the formulation of correct modes of approach in the acquisition of knowledge. American universities are coming in nowadays for some very hard knocks. Our high school system is in a chaotic and unsatisfactory condition. The equipment is greatly superior, in cost and completeness, to that found in educational institutions in any other country. The development and progress of education in recent years, judged by increase in numbers, is astounding. During the past three decades, the number of high school students in the United States has increased 800 per cent. During the same period the number of students in our higher institutions of learning has quadrupled.

The basic aims of education are now receiving close and intensive study. Science is gaining, if it has not already gained, a predominant place in our everyday thinking. The American desires efficiency; he wishes to see the results of study. Science fulfils this desideratum in fullest measure, by demonstrating that the knowledge acquired through scientific study is significant knowledge.

There was a time when education was thought of as a sponge-like process. The student allowed knowledge to seep in, as a sponge soaks up water. When the saturation point was reached, the student was educated. It was a static ideal; the orderly accumulation of information, for its own sake, as a formal body of knowledge necessary for the "culture" of the individual. It has been largely through the development of the scientific spirit that education has taken on a dynamic character. As McPherson puts it: Knowledge is to be sought in order that it may be used to invent, to create, to control. • • • The past is our storehouse of experience and the foundation under our feet, and is of value just in so far as it is of service in guiding us into larger knowledge and into those uses and applications that contribute to right living.

America is fortunate in having philosophers who are imbued with the spirit of dynamic education. Conspicuous among them are Dewey and Whitehead, both of whom regard education as a force for developing creative and constructive power in the individual. Education, says Whitehead, is the art of utilization of knowledge. The only use of knowledge of the past is to equip us for the present. • • • We must beware of inert ideas, that is to say, ideas that are received into the mind without being utilized, or tested, or thrown into fresh combination.

The scientific habit of mind, in all branches of study, is the great need in modern education. As Wolfe has so well pointed out, the scientific mind is objective, impersonal, soundly rational; observant, critical, and reflective; constructively imaginative, fearless in facing facts and courageous in defending its convictions. The scientific mind seeks to discover the underlying, hidden laws of nature; and to use them for man's betterment. —Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 20—The opening of a new five-and-ten-cent store these days has taken on a musical show hoop-la. It brings out an entire neighborhood in a furore of excitement. Extra police often have to be called. And an ambulance stands by.

The doors open promptly at 9 a. m., but by 8 sidewalks in front are bulging with a jostling crowd of bargain hunters. Many unusual values are offered at a premiere and souvenirs are given away. There are clowns to amuse the children.

A huge orchestra renders popular selections and in instances the management secures the presence of a movie or stage star or a prize fight celebrity. The whole thing has the expert touch of a professional stage director Many come in limousines.

Sales girls are beautified to a Tiffany polish, Floorwalkers are in cutaways and boutonniered. The opening I attended on upper Broadway featured a special sale in steps. Lavender and pink things were selling like hot cakes at ten cents a copy.

The perfume counter, too, had a big crush. The favored scent was put up in atomizers and sold for a dime. On opening day many articles are priced far below cost to bring in the crowds for a look-around. Once inside few resist a whack at picking up an armload of doo-dads.

Next to the growth of the red-fronted five-and-ten—there are four on Fifth avenue now—the greatest mercantile phenomenon in New York is the drugless drug store. One of the largest in Times square does not sell a single patented medicine or fill a prescription. Yet is always packed.

• • •

An amusing touch to the five-and-ten opening was offered by an early morning drunk all dressed up and no place to go. After lurching around various counters he finally buttonholed a floorwalker and hiccuped "What have you in flowers better than a silly orchid?"

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Jan. 20—It would seem that a new senator, who, only two days before had been sworn in—the first time in twenty-eight years that the oath had been administered to a North Carolinian in that body—would be a bit wary of his step.

But not so with Cameron Morrison, who now occupies the seat of the late Senator Overman.

The man, called "Cam." by his friends, set something like a record in the rapidity with which he went into action as a senator. And he faced a barrage worthy to test any man's mettle.

He dared lock horns with no less a veteran than Walsh, of Montana. He faced the sarcasm of Carter Glass, of Virginia. And if we may take the word of those who witnessed the battle first-hand, the white-haired, distinguished-looking North Carolinian acquitted himself well.

The junior senator from North Carolina made his debut in the battle over confirmation of Frank R. McNinch as a member of the federal power commission.

McNinch and Morrison are close personal friends. They live directly across the street from each other. McNinch is an elder in Morrison's church. In the last presidential campaign the two were on opposite sides of the political fence. McNinch opposed Smith, while Morrison supported the Democratic nominee.

"I fought him all over North Carolina," said Morrison, "until our sweet personal and neighborhood relations were well-nigh broken

But all that is forgotten now.

Morrison so praised his friend and neighbor to the senate that Carter Glass was moved to describe his remarks as "personal panegyrics to the elder of my church and my neighbor.

But that didn't daunt the new senator. He referred to Walsh as "the great tribune of the people" and proceeded to tell him what he had omitted in his argument against McNinch that would, in his opinion, have made it a very great speech.

• • •

Nor did he lose sight of the fact that what he was doing was unusual. He apologized for speaking so soon.

"I regret, Mr. President and senators, that I had to trespass upon the attention of this body in almost the hour of my entrance, but conditions made it necessary for me to do it

"I could not help it. I do not want you to think that I did not desire to respect what I understand the traditions of this great body to require, that I should wait awhile.

"Mark my words: My vote here was necessary to keep from insulting 100,000 of the best people in North Carolina who honor McNinch and believe he is fit and worthy."

Just two days before he was sworn in Morrison created something of a stir when, before walking down the aisle to the vice president's dais, he waved to his wife and friends sitting in the gallery.

City Politics Edging in As Topic of Discussion

Several Already Mentioned as Prospective Candidates for G. O. P. Mayoralty Nomination; Jones Seems Sure as Democratic Choice.

Although city politics are not expected to come to the forefront until after the spring thaw warms up the political cauldron, party leaders already are casting anxious eyes over their ranks for suitable mayoralty timber.

The August primaries may produce some interesting contests for the ticket position on the city ticket if several men reported to be considering the sizes of their hats work up sufficient courage to toss their fedoras into the arena.

Jones Has Field Alone

While the Democratic battle line seems to be barren of opposition to Mayor L. Don Jones, who undoubtedly heard the names of R. E. Peterman, W. B. Strayer, and possibly that of Emery Murphy mentioned as prospective candidates. Peterman, it will be remembered, withdrew from the Republican primary campaign last year after organizing his drive for the nomination. He has been in public life several years, his latest official position being that of president of city council.

Former Official

Strayer is another experienced in the art of city government, having served as safety director and member of city council.

Both officials have been in close touch with city affairs, having left office only little more than a year ago.

In some quarters it is predicted that Emery Murphy, connected with the Marion Steam Shovel Co., may make a bid for the mayor's chair again this year. He has served a year at the head of the city government filling the unexpired term of former Mayor Hazen. He was defeated in 1929 by Mayor Jones.

It is not expected that Mayor Jones will have any opposition at the primaries.

SEES FUTURE AERIAL LINES

Noted Engineer Predicts Regular Service Operating Over Atlantic.

By International News Service.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 20—Predictions of regular trans-Atlantic airplane passenger service, with anchored seadromes providing a chain of refueling stations in mid-ocean, were sounded again today as the National Society of Automotive Engineers was holding its five-day annual convention.

The conclave is being held in conjunction with Detroit's $2,000,000 automobile exposition, which occupies three and one-half acres of floor space at convention hall here.

Officials of the mammouth display were enthusiastic today over the great interest of what they termed a "buying crowd." Attendance and sales records of previous years have been shattered.

Not only aircraft and automobile engineering, but oil and rubber developments drew the attention of the automotive engineers.

R. A. Armstrong, nationally-known automobile and aeronautical engineer, predicted the trans-Atlantic "air liner." He cited the engineering problems in building and maintaining a series of floating islands 350 miles apart across the Atlantic.

The ideal route he said, would provide for eight such seadromes. The first would be anchored midway between Halifax, N. S., and Bermuda, 350 miles offshore. The European terminal would be at Plymouth, Eng., or Brest, France.

Cuba's central highway, constructed by the government for 700 miles to serve virtually all cities and towns on the island, is expected to be completed by the end of February.

"Distinctive But Not Expensive"

Ohio Girl is Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

Take the experience of Mrs. H. B. Hopson, 1449 East 88th St., Cleveland, who says: "Nothing seemed to please Leona Mae. She was fretful, feverish, suffered a lot from constipation.

"We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it for over a year."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened.

For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California.

The ...ning had started so inno... and had grown into such a ... that both of them found ... difficult to know where to begin to discuss it. Viv remembered that it was in this car that they had been drenched one Sunday—when the dress that was the nucleus of all that had happened since, had been ruined by the rain. It occurred to Channing that finery was, perhaps, the basic cause of most of the woes woman had known since Eve first learned that apples were really serpents' eggs.

An hour they spent at a quiet roadhouse, served to rest them and soothe their nerves, as well as give Vivienne a chance to tell him just what had happened.

Channing deftly switched the subject. He sketched his plan of Vivienne's going to the studio, so that Aileen could visit with her without their being observed.

"Oh, it would have been ideal!—except for what has happened. In fact, I'm not sure that I ought to go to New York at all."

"Where else would you go?" he asked, and Vivienne shook her head.

"I don't know," she said slowly. "Would it make any difference?"

"Of course! Viv, you've got to begin to think of someone besides yourself. Aileen wants and needs you."

Vivienne almost hated him for reminding her of that. For almost an hour they motored on, each again avoiding all efforts at conversation. Then as the car was passing an old, bandoned farm, Channing swerved it abruptly through the entrance gates. He ran along the weed-grown road, past a ramshackle barn, and brought the roadster to a stop under a clump of trees.

"What's the matter?" Vivienne asked, surprised at the set of his jaw.

"There's something I'm going to say to you—and I'm going to say it now," Channing answered grimly. "You've behaved like a spoiled kid long enough. I don't mind telling you, frankly, that I'm sick of it!"

She could hardly believe this was Channing, there in the car beside her. That tone from any other man would have thrown her into a panic. Yet the knowledge that it was Channing brought back her old diablerie.

"Oh, really!" She laughed unpleasantly. It was true that she'd asked him to help her, but she was not proposing to listen to any curtain lecture.

"Yes, really!" he snapped and faced her. "I'm going to ask a few questions—and I want the truth. In the first place—honestly—did you fire that shot at Kronberg?"

"Are you serious in asking that?" She stared at him incredulously. "Can you think that I invented the woman in the mask?"

"No, but Kronberg thinks so—or pretends he does. What I want to know is—did you?"

"Shoot him? Certainly not. And whatever you may think I am—or haven't the courage to be—do you suppose I'd implicate Aileen in order to clear myself?"

"No," he said. "You wouldn't. We'll consider that two answers. Now, did you offer Kronberg—what you once offered me?"

"N-no!" she faltered and hung her head. "But I—I suppose he thought so."

"Naturally," Channing nodded. "You'd have no right to shoot him—after that admission. But it's evident from your account of what he said last night that he doesn't want you now. I told you once that I didn't myself. No doubt you remember that?"

"I shan't ever forget it!" She looked away from him.

"Well, then don't let your resentment prompt you to give some other man—the impression you gave Kronberg."

"Oh, don't!" She writhed under his gaze, and it was pitiless.

"I told you I'd something to say to you—and you're going to hear it. This world has no room for half-way girls. Even a decent man can respect a woman who's frankly—foolish. But the rottenest cad has no use for one who just pretends."

"Dwight! Dwight!" Viv almost screamed. Kronberg had practically told her as much. Now Channing reconfirmed it.

Neither of them wanted her. She was something beyond the pale—lower than an outcast! So that was their opinion. It lashed her like a whip.

But Channing had goaded her too far. If this was their creed, she'd show them—if only to prove she was not the sort both of them despised.

"Well?" she demanded and tossed her head. 'Since you've made that perfectly clear—suppose I say I'm converted—that I'll cease to be half-way? I tell you I meant what I said to you—what I let Kronberg believe—what everybody thinks'"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Monday. It was cold but not so very cold when I opened the window to let Jubilee down by his rope, and when I had shut the window and went down and shook down the base burner and went out with the pail to milk the dummed brutes about all the bunch was there but Nibs, and he has got a job milking Scanlun's cow, and he isn't as good a milker as what I am, so it takes him longer. I would hate to be a cow and have a fella milking me when he didn't know how. When I went in the house to strain the milk and feed my face Younias and Maggie and Feeble went in too, and Feeble asted my grandfather if he got a bite through the ice yesterday, and my ant said, "No, he got his leg through the ice," and then my father asted him if he felt any ill effects from getting his leg through the hole, and my grandfather said he has had a stiff leg ever since; but he has had a stiff leg ever since he fit the war, so that isn't anything. He said he would have to go down there again soon to find out who the boathouser's bootlegger's, but We went around to Gimmie's on the way home and her mother asted us to come in, and told me to hang up my hat and pointed to a nail in the kitchen door, so I hung my hat on it and turned around to speak to Younias, and Gimmie's mother looked behind me like she was surprised so I turned around, and my hat was on the floor. So I picked it up and hung it up again, and then it was on the floor before I tufned around, so I hung it up again slow, and that time I caught it before it fell, and then I felt the nail, and it was made of rubber, but it sure did look like a real nail Gimmie's mother is always doing something like that. Everybody hoorawed me.

Today was Tuesday, and clear not so cold. My grandfather went fishing again, and he must of got the other leg through the ice, because he was trying to sing Annie Laurie when he came home, and he must have seen two gates, because he turned in the one that wasn't there and hung himself over the fence. My ant turned up her nose and said there was no fool like an old fool, and my grandfather said he realized that, but she needn't apologize to him because it wasn't her fault and he didn't care anyhow, and he asted her if she would like a snort before she went to bed, but she snorted and went to bed mad. Because I am a boy I may grow up to be a grandfather, and if I was a girl I might grow up to be an ant. Jubilee is lucky.

LUCKY TIGER

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Uneasiness of Her Jovial Neighbor Causes Madge To Speculate.

MY worry over the queer look in Mrs. Ticer's eyes as she looked at me, remained with me, even though I had no time to dwell upon it during the next few minutes following Harry Underwood's question concerning the person who was responsible for the exquisite lily pool, which had been fashioned back of the rose garden as a surprise to me when I came home from the hospital. Both Harry and Lillian Underwood were asking interested questions, while Junior and Roderick were quite beside themselves. They had dropped flat on the ground when they saw the gold fishes flitting through the water, dappled with sunlight and shaded by the lily pads and the trailing vines, and were giving vent to shrill little yelps of joyful excitement.

"O-oh, Rod; see that shiner," Junior exclaimed. "Look it!" He got a mosquito. And there's a tadpole—one, two, three of 'em! They'll grow to be frogs after a while, won't they Mums?"

Sincere Appreciation

Te looked up at me, and I smiled at his delight, nodded assent, while I gave one ear to Sam Ticer's delighted but shy reception of the encomiums Harry and Lillian were showering upon him at Dicky's wave of the hand toward him and his subsequent announcement that our neighbor was the man who had built the pool.

"Shucks! I didn't have so much to do with it," he said. "Jerry, here he helped me some, and so did Jim. Of course I know something about concrete work, and building frames, and all that."

"I'll testify to that little fact in any court of law," Dicky said with a grin. "You're sure there in that line. You see," he went on, "it isn't so hard building a square pool or an oblong one. The frames of those are comparatively easy to do, just four sides of boards measured to fit the inside of your pool and an inner corresponding frame six inches or more from the outer one depending upon the width you want your wall. Then you fill in your concrete, hold your breath and trust in the Lord, all other people cash. But a round pool! That takes brains and instinct."

"Both of which we know our neighbor possesses," Harry Underwood said, but behind the hidden gibe, which made Dicky bite his lips, I knew there was genuine appreciation of our neighbor's skill, and Sam Ticer's lean face fairly glowed as he listened.

"Yes, a round pool is harder," he said, "but we finally got there. That was only the beginning though, getting the concrete in. It wouldn't look very pretty, just a big round hole in the ground, if Mr. Graham hadn't got busy with the plants and fish."

"During which process I fancy somebody's private till was pretty well tapped," Harry Underwood said shrewdly. "I'm not long on flora and fauna and fishin please don't kill me, anybody but I have a modicum of common sense."

"Yeah?" Dicky drawled, provocatively, but his friend ignored him loftily.

"And I know that plants in this perfection of bloom—in fact, the whole finished appearance of this—aren't the result of normal growth in this short time. There was no sign of this when we went away."

"There wasn't any when Madge went to the hospital," Dicky explained, with pardonable pride. "Father and I planned it as a welcome home surprise for her, and I'll admit it did put a dent in a century or two, besides entailing two or three trips over here on the part of the New Jersey man, who is the last word on water landscapes. But it was all worth it when we saw Madge take her first look at it. She was like a kid with a Christmas stocking."

His voice was filled with tenderness, to which I thrilled, and I flashed him a glance of loving gratitude. I flashed him something an instant later—a little signal upon which he instantly acted.

A Tribute

"It's to Mrs. Ticer we owe the finishing touches," he said, and I watched my neighbor narrowly, wondering whether her natural feminine susceptibility to praise would banish the worried look I had seen in her eyes. But evidently hers was too deep-seated a worry to be vanquished by any personal gratification, and, though her lips smiled tremulously, and I knew that she was tremendously pleased by Dicky's tribute, her eyes were still troubled pools.

"Yes," I broke into the conversation, ruthlessly. "Mrs. Ticer brought all this color, they tell me, and planted all the myrtle."

I gestured toward the rough stones outlining the edge of the pool, among which the yellow of coreopsis, the deep blue of the "ragged sailor," and the white of the delicate, yet ever enduring sweet alyssum gave the necessary color against the glossy green of the myrtle tendrils.

"Shucks!" My neighbor echoed her husband's protest of a few minutes earlier. It is a family epithet. "The plants were all here in your own gardens."

I shook my head at her. "Granted the coreopsis and the myrtle perennials both," I said, "but those blue and white annuals never came from anywhere else than your own garden patch. And Dicky has told me how you came up here twice a day to be sure that the plants were watered properly. He said you wouldn't trust anybody else to do it."

"Well you know the old saying," she said, shrewdly. "And they did stand up well, if I do say it, as shouldn't. I wish you'd look at this corner over here. It has more buds on one plant than I ever saw before."

She stepped a few paces aside and I followed with her, and bent over the plant which she indicated. I guessed that her remark had been a subterfuge, had my guess confirmed an instant later, when she whispered:

"I must talk to you. I saw Hallam today."
